The First Flower.

Along the wooded way
Where shadows dance and drift,
All tremulous and gay,
Your pale star you uplift.

The zephyr's fragile toy,
You languorously beam,
A syllable of joy
In melodies of dream.

'Tis yours to bloom and blow
In sunshine and in song—
And where'er you go,
To take the spring air,

TO-MORROW.

By JOHN COLLINS.

John Collins, actor and poet, was born at Bath, England, in 1742. He obtained great popularity at the close of the eighteenth century for his musical entertainments. He very early in life made his appearance on the Bath stage, playing in a great variety of parts. He died at Birmingham on May 2, 1838. The best of the poems written by Mr. Collins are "To-morrow," "The Golden Days of Good Queen Bess," "Date Obolus Bellarum," and "Ben Brock."

N the down-hill of life, when I find I'm declining,
May my fate no less fortunate be
Than a snug elbow chair will afford for reclining,
And a cot that o'erlooks the wide sea;
With an ambling pad-pony to pace o'er the lawn,
While I carol away idle sorrow,
And blithe as the lark that each day halts the dawn,
Look forward with hope for To-morrow.

With a porch at my door, both for shelter and shade, too,
As the sunshine or rain may prevail;
And a small spot of ground for the use of the spade, too,
With a barn for the use of the flail;
A cow for my dairy, a dog for my game,
And a purse when a friend wants to borrow;
I'll envy no nabob his riches or fame,
Or what honors may wait him To-morrow.

From the bleak northern blast may my cot be completely
Secured by a neighboring hill;
And at night may repose steal upon me more sweetly

By the sound of a murmuring rill;
And while peace and while plenty I find at my board,

With a heart free from sickness and sorrow,
With my friends may I share what To-day may afford,

And let them spread the table To-morrow.

And when I at last must throw off this frail cov-
ring,

Which I've worn for three-score and ten,
On the brink of the grave I'll not seek to keep ho'ring,

Nor my thread wish to spin o'er again;
But my face in the glass I'll serenely survey,
And with smiles count each wrinkle and furrow,
As this old worn-out stuff, which is threadbare
To-day,

May become Everlasting To-morrow.

LADIES' TUCKED SHIRT WAIST.

No. 3103.—The new styles in shirt-waists demand not only a change in the sleeve but a broader effect, instead of the sloping seam that was in vogue last season. This means a shorter shoulder seam with the sleeve brought higher up and straighter in its general effect at the top.

The waist shown herewith has all the new features. A slight fullness is provided by a group of tucks in the upper front, additional tucks near each shoulder breadth. The sleeve is of the leg-of-mutton style, with the lower fullness disposed in diagonal tucks above the cuff. No better style can be found for shirt-waists of wash materials, whether madras, percale, lawn or lawn, while it is also ideal for taffetas, challis, voile, etc.

The pattern is in sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches, bust measure. To make in 36-inch size will require three yards of material 58 inches wide, with one yard of lining.

The pattern can be gotten from The Times-Dispatch, for 10c.—Adv.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

NORFOLK, VA., April 13.—Captain Robert Frueger, of the tug Peerless, of Philadelphia, reported here to-day that he and the crew were badly scared by striking a torpedo off Old Point Comfort. The torpedoes have been placed by the officers of Fort Monroe in anticipation of the sham battle which is to occur there soon between the attacking fleet and the defending land forces. The floating torpedoes will not explode by contact, but they and the mines are to be exploded under dummy ships by electric wires controlled within the fort. The cable steamer, Cyrus W. Field, has been engaged for three weeks laying mines and placing torpedo defenses about Fort Monroe.

The entire staff of internes of St. Vincent's Hospital has been changed. The new staff is: Dr. T. N. Bergeson, of Philadelphia; Dr. Frank Hilton, of Washington; Dr. Paul W. Green, of Norfolk, and Dr. E. H. Miller, of the former staff.

WOODHOUSE GOLDEN WEDDING.

Josiah Woodhouse, of the famous Witcomb farm of Princess Anne county, celebrated his golden wedding anniversary to-night. He is eighty-nine years of age and one of the unique characters of the Tidewater. He has lived where he was born all of his life, and has acquired a fortune from the cultivation of Lynnhaven oysters in the bay of that name. His place is on the part of the bay where one of the judicial duckings occurred in colonial times, the record of which is still preserved in the courthouse. Mr. Woodhouse has no children, but his brother, Sol, long since dead, left two children, and the son he named Josiah, in honor of his childhood brother, has fourteen. Two of these are named for the recent presidents, McKinley and Roosevelt.

The Witcomb farm is famous for its oysters, and a feast of roasted oysters there is one of the features of a visit to the Tidewater country. All of the neighbors and a number of the citizens here went to assist in the celebration of the golden wedding at the old-fashioned house of the amiable and hospitable old man.
